Your library is a valuable resource for genealogical research—especially if it offers OCLC’s WorldCat database. There’s no deeper catalog than WorldCat for finding historic newspapers, family bibles, church histories, wills, manuscripts, maps, photographs and many other resources that genealogists need.

As more libraries digitize their special collections, more of these genealogy resources become available for viewing on WorldCat. With WorldCat you have the power to search thousands of library catalogs at once, locate resources you need and learn how you can access them.

Learn more at www.oclc.org/worldcat/genealogy/ and ask your librarian about free access to WorldCat.
